A REPRESENTATIVE TRANF.—He was one of those regular old soakers who have assisted in raising "tramping" to the dignity of a profession, and he marched into the City Sergeaut's office with all the dignity of a man who spent his time in paying taxes and cutting off cupons. With a full bass voice he saluted Sergeant Henry, thus: "I want to board with you, sir; I am anxious to stay with you acouple of weeks."
"In what capacity?" asked the officer. "Do you expect to ingratiate yourself into the bosom of my family and find a home?"

Can this be Sister Mary Hoover, who was recently reported married to one Wm. Bowman, an insurance agent, lately located in Bellaire? fruiful topic of conversation. The town boys seem to consider the fair inmates of that institution as being under their special protection. For a short time since two railway employes, one from the branch of the Panhandle and the other since two railway employes, one from the branch of the Panhandle and the other from the B. & O. road, being impregnated with the foolish youthful passion of the college boys of the town, in order to get a glimpee of those inspiring creatures behind those seminary walls determined on giving a serenade one night. Taking their instruments under their arms they repaired to the school grounds and selecting a desirable situation on the downy grass in front and beneath the enchantresses' windows they began to clear their throats gently and sofitly tuned their instruments. Those musical preparations, always a necessity, were on this occasion carried on hardly soft enough, for the enraptured serenaders were startled and delighted to hear gentle whisperings to their right, which they imagined were walted on the wings of a gentle night wind from the expectant lips of the freshly awakened charmers. It was too much for the railway boys, so unexpected and delicious that they could not proceed.

But mustering courage, they quieted to the bosom of my family and find a home?"

The battered veteran drew himself- up to his full height and thundered: "Do I look like a man who would do a thing of that kind? No, sir! All I want is a chance to join the tramp brigade, and to find a shelter once more over my venerable head. Got any terbaccer?"

The old man was told that he might find shelter and food at the workhouse, which caused him to elevate his nose high in the air. With a look of disgust on his face he took a reproachful look at the officer, and remarked: "See here, what kind of a man do you take me for? What kind of a man do you take me for? What kind of a game are you giving me? Do you think I want any workhouse in mine? No, sir; not if I know myself. I've got to work if I go there, and that's what I can't and won't do! I haven't done a stroke of work in seven years, and what's more I ain't agoin' to in seven more. It's a darned cheap town that can't give a man a little soup without making him break stone for it." And mexpected and deficious into the yeolar not proceed.

But mustering courage, they quieted their bashful desire to run, and struck the first note of their lay, at the same time turning their yearning eyes in the direction of the whispering. At that instant they heard what they took to be the patter of the fair creatures' bare feel in the rush to the windows and the in the rush to the windows and the echoes of which sounded all around them In great ecstacy they put the full power of their overwrought souls into the next of their overwrought souls into the next succeeding notes, which, however, were cut off by the second volley of pattering, the sound of which was so material that their souls were not only pierced, but the vibrations were so effective as to double up the B. & O. man and knock the Panhandle off its pins. The instruments also were affected and commenced on a very depressing tune, and the town boys, who were the cause of the trouble, with a whoop and a cry and a volley of stones took down the street after the creatfallen, fleeing railroaders. This is published as a warning to all non-residents of Washington, who may contemplate doing what the railroaders had intended doing. CHARGED WITH EXTICING A YOUNG GIRL AWAY FROM HER HOME.—Mrs. Frances Martin, a widow lady residing on Eoff street, in the Sixth ward, has entered an information before Justice Kammer, charging C. H. Martin, a mephew, with enticing Anna M.-Martin, her youngest daugher, away from home for indecent purposes. The defendant has been employed in this city as a cook, and resides in Martin's Ferry, where it is said he has a wife. Anna, his alleged victim, is about nineteen years old. It is thought the couple are now in Pittsburgh.

COMBINED IRON AND STEEL ORDNANCE COMPANY.—Secretary of State Hedrick on Saturday issued a certificate of incor-poration to the Combined Iron and Stee on Saturday issued a certificate of incorporation to the Combined Iron and Steel Ordnance Company, for the purpose of manufacturing and selling ordnance, cannon or artiflery of all kinds, and small arms with machinery or, fixtures pertaining thereto; also ship armor and other products of iron or steel and combined iron and steel. The corporation will keep its principal office or place of business at Washington City, or at the city of Wheeling, and is to expire Jan. 1, 1876. The sum of $5,000 has been subscribed to the capital stock, of which $500 is paid in, with the privilege of increasing said capital to $1,000,000. The capital is divided into shares of $100 each, and held as follows: J. T. Snead, of Camden, New Jersey, two shares; Joseph S. Ruckel, of Washington city, ten shares; John T. M. Orendorf, of Montgomery county, Maryland, ten shares; John H. Rice, of Bangor, Me., ten shares; John H. Rice, of Bangor, Me., ten shares; and Henry Cummins, of New York city, ten shares.

The gentleman on Market street, Centre Wheeling, who left the water running all night in a basin holding a couple of gallons, has our sympathy. Financially, he is not ruined, as he has a running account with the water works office. And those dreary droppings down in the lower rooms reminding the family of the patterings of the rain, though they cause much inconvenience and have started Bridget out bright and early to look for "another place, sure," are evils which in time will correct themselves. Patience, brother, patience. MURDERED IN NEBRASKA.—Intelligence of the probable murder of James McConnaughy, a son of the late Dr. McConnaughy, in Nebraska, was received in Bridgeport on Saturday. The body of Mr. McConnaughy was found in the woods in Nebraska, where it had evidently lain for some time, and under circumstances which lead to the supposition that he was murdered. McConnaughy was a young unmarried man, rphans." A matinee is to be given on 'ednesday afternoon. Zera and his party will leave town this orning at 4 o'clock for Springfield, Ohio, where they will play three nights. The Cawthorne children, who unwittingly umped into a little notoriety here, were lischarged on Saturday morning, and left the same day for Boston, in company with their gentle mamma.

AMUSEMENT NOTES.—Frank Mayo will appear in his inimitable character of "Davy Crockett," at the Opera House on Saturday evening next. This will probably be the last amusement at the Opera House the present month.

MARRIED AND SEPARATED THE SAME DAY.—What might be called a romanti-marringe occurred at the Probate Judge', office in St. Clairsville last Thursday office in St. Clairsville last Thursday. The groom was George Yaus, a prisoner in the county jail then awaiting sentence and transportation to the Penitentiary for stabbing with intent to kill. The bride was Miss Sarah E. Chandler, a rather prepossessing young woman from Loydsville. After the matrimonial knot was tied the groom was taken back to jail and the bride returned to her hotel. The marriage took place at 1 P. M.; three hours later the happy husband was sentenced to five years imprisonment in the Penitentiary, and the same evening was taken to Columbus.

LOON.—A disgraceful row took place at the "Blaring Stump Saloon," in North Wheeling, on Saturday night. The pro-prietor of the saloon, Joseph Schmel-sauer, and son got into a difficulty with one Peter Handlan, and after locking him up in the law rows presented to the one Peter Handlan, and after socker him up in the bar room proceeded to pur ish him severely. Handlan recived TRAMES find this sort of weather most depressing to their spirits. They feel that in a few short weeks they may be compelled to go out and hunt for work.

ROW AT THE "BLAZING STUMP" SA

Daring Highway Robbery.—Jacob Massear arrived in this city yesterday afternoon from Laporte, Indiana, en route for Baltimore. As he had several hours to wait here he thought he would take a look about the Nail City. While he was sitting near Hubbard's saw mill, at the north end of the Main street bridge, three strange men came up and entered into conversation with him. After a while one of his new acquaintances complained of hunger, upon which Jacob volunteered to pay for the oysters for the party. This was of course agreeable to all, and they forthwith proceeded to a saloon, and dined sumptuously at the Indiana man's expense. After this one of the party suggested a walk up town, and they went to that paradise of loafers, the Second ward market house. Here one of Jacob's new friends suddenly discovered that he was out of tobacco, and as there wasn't a crumb of the weed in the crowd Jacob drew forth his pocket book with the intention of donating ten cents for the purchase of a plug, when one of the party suddenly snatched the book from his hands. The three then took to their heels, with Jacob in chase minus his wealth. The thieves were pursued down Market alley to the river, where the pursuer lost sight of them. The pocket book contained a $200 draft, abut $13 in money and a railroad ticket to Baltimore. The draft Messear had received from D. P. Glosser, in payment for work done upon his farm at Laporte, Indiana the second contained and the proceed to the party and the second form of the proceed from D. P. The drait Messear and re-ceived from D. P. Glosser, in payment for work done upon his farm at Laporte, In-diana. Messear went to the police head-quarters and described the robbers and at 11 o'clock last night their names were known and there was a strong probability of their early capture.

THE MOKEE RANKIN COMBINATION—
Mr. McKee Rankin, an actor of reputation, and a strong dramatic company, will to-night produce in the Opera House the beautiful drama entitled "The Two Orphans." The piece will be presented with new scenery and mechanical effects,

THE MCKEE RANKIN COMBINATION.

This, Hughes & Co.—We call attention to the advertisement of this firm which appears in our columns this morning. It is hardly necessary for us to say any thing in compliment to this well established house. Mr. Hughes, the senior partner, we believe has been longer in the merchant tailoring business than any other man in the city, and the house is widely known as dealing only in the best quality of goods, and its dilligent and polite attention to its patrons has never been exceeded. They keep nothing but the best goods, employ none but the best workmen, and their work is sold at prices to suit the times.

Runaway.—On Saturday morning a horse attached to a milk wagon belong-ingto Mrs, Launtmyer became frightened on Main street, above the Vigilant engine house, and ran off. The wagon was up-set and badly damaged. People who were caught out at church last night without umbrellas consoled themselves with the reflection that warm rains always make milk more pletiful— cows absorb so much water in the winter.
